

ABSTRACT

A vehicle radio and/or audio-video player can be tuned to a channel in response to a voice command by accessing a local database or the Internet to determine which channel plays content most closely matching the voice command, e.g., "play classical music".